Item 7.01. Regulation FD Disclosure.

On November 2, 2006, Forest Oil Corporation ( Forest ) announced that it had formed a new subsidiary, Forest Alaska Operating LLC ( Forest Alaska ) and had transferred the majority of its Alaska business unit assets to Forest Alaska, and that Forest Alaska intends to attempt to obtain $375 million of term loan financing to fund a $350 million distribution to Forest and provide working capital for Forest Alaska s operations. The credit facilities will be secured by Forest Alaska s assets and will be non-recourse to Forest.

Beginning on November 15, 2006, Forest intends to start meeting with potential lenders regarding the new credit facilities. The following information is included in the materials to be provided to the potential lenders and is summary information that is intended to be considered in the context of Forest s SEC filings and other public announcements that Forest may make, by press release or otherwise, from time to time.

Forest Alaska Reserves Summary

DeGolyer & MacNaughton ( D&M ), Forest s independent reserve engineers, prepared an independent evaluation of the Alaska properties and provided Forest with a proved and probable reserve report as of June 30, 2006.

A more thorough description of the differentiation between the level of involvement of third party reservoir engineers can be found below:

Review: An independent engineering firm analyzes the processes and procedures that a company uses in estimating reserves to test their compliance with relevant standards. This is the least rigorous independent method.

Audit: An independent engineering firm performs a detailed estimate of a portion of a company s reserves. Typically, those reserves that comprise 80% of the value of the company s reserves. The independent engineering firm then compares its estimates, in the aggregate, to those prepared by the company. If the company s estimate falls within the independent engineering firm s level of tolerance, then the company s estimate will be presented as having been made in compliance with relevant standards. The level of tolerance is typically  $\pm 10\%$ .

Prepared: An independent engineering firm performs a detailed estimate of a company s reserves and prepares a reserve report containing its own estimates rather than those of the company. This is the most rigorous independent method and is the method that has been employed by Forest Alaska for its proved and probable reserves.

* Estimated proved and probable reserves were prepared by D&M as of June 30, 2006.

(1) Based on NYMEX strip as of November 6, 2006.

(2) Present value or PV-10% When used with respect to oil and gas reserves, means the estimated future gross revenue to be generated from the production of net proved reserves, net of estimated production and future development and abandonment costs, using prices and costs in effect at the determination date, without giving effect to non-property related expenses such as general and administrative expenses, debt service, accretion, and future income tax expense or to depreciation, depletion, and amortization, discounted using monthly end-of-period discounting at a nominal discount rate of 10% per annum.

PV-10% is computed on the same basis as the standardized measure of discounted future net cash flows but without deducting income taxes. The table below provides a reconciliation of PV-10% to the standardized measure of discounted future net cash flows.

	(In thousands)
PV-10%	$ 623,697
Future income taxes, discounted at 10%	159,142
Standardized measure of discounted future net cash flows	$ 464,555

(3) All reserves associated with the Cosmopolitan Field are subject to a pending decision by Forest Alaska whether to participate in a sidetrack well proposed by the third-party operator. If it determines not to participate in this well, Forest Alaska will likely forfeit its interest in the Cosmopolitan reserves.

Cautionary Statements

The SEC permits oil and gas companies, in their reports filed with the SEC, to disclose only proved reserves that a company has demonstrated by actual production or conclusive formation tests to be economically and legally producible under existing economic and operating conditions. Forest has used the term "probable" reserves and other descriptions of volumes of reserves potentially recoverable through additional drilling or recovery techniques that the SEC's guidelines strictly prohibit Forest from including in reports filed with the SEC. These estimates are by their nature more speculative than estimates of proved reserves and accordingly are subject to substantially greater risk of being actually realized by us. Investors are urged to consider closely the disclosure in Forest's Annual Report on Form 10-K for fiscal year ended December 31, 2005 as filed with the SEC.

The presentation materials include forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933 and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. All statements, other than statements of historical facts, that address activities that Forest assumes, plans, expects, believes, projects, estimates or anticipates (and other similar expressions) will, should or may occur in the future are forward-looking statements. These forward-looking statements are based on management's current belief, based on currently available information, as to the outcome and timing of future events. Forest cautions that its future natural gas and liquids production, revenues and expenses and other forward-looking statements are subject to all of the risks and uncertainties normally incident to the exploration for and development and production and sale of oil and gas. These risks include, but are not limited to, price volatility, inflation or lack of availability of goods and services, environmental risks, drilling and other operating risks, regulatory changes, the uncertainty inherent in estimating future oil and gas production or reserves, and other risks as described in Forest's 2005 Annual Report on Form 10-K for fiscal year ended December 31, 2005 as filed with the SEC. Also, the financial results of Forest's foreign operations are subject to currency exchange rate risks. Any of these factors could cause Forest's actual results and plans to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements.

PV-10% is an estimated present value of future net revenues from proved reserves before income taxes. PV-10% may be considered a non-GAAP financial measure under SEC regulations because it does not include the effects of future income taxes, as is required in computing the standardized measure of discounted future net cash flows. Forest believes PV-10% to be an important measure for evaluating the relative significance of the natural gas and oil properties included in the Forest Alaska operations and that PV-10% is widely used by professional analysts and investors in evaluating oil and gas companies. Because many factors that are unique to each individual company impact the amount of future income taxes to be paid, the use of a pre-tax measure provides greater comparability of assets when evaluating companies. Forest believes that most other companies in the oil and gas industry calculate PV-10% on the same basis. The management of Forest also uses PV-10% in evaluating acquisition candidates.

Forest undertakes no duty or obligation to publicly update or revise the information contained in this report, although it may do so from time to time as management believes is warranted. Any such updating may be made through the filing of other reports or documents with the SEC, through press releases or through other public disclosure.

The information in this Current Report is being furnished pursuant to this Item 7.01 of Form 8-K and shall not be deemed "filed" for purposes of Section 18 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, or otherwise subject to the liabilities of that section or Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.
