1) Sign-up fees

- The QoQ decrease was due to decrease in the number of new subscribers.

2) Monthly fees

- The YoY decrease was due to the tariff cut in monthly fee implemented in September 1, 2004, which was partly offset by increase in average subscriber number.

- The QoQ decrease was due to increase in phone mail discount from increased usage, as phone mail discount is reflected in monthly fees. (Phone mail discount: 05 1Q. KRW 134.7 bn à 05 2Q. KRW 171.7 bn)

3) Call charges

- The YoY and QoQ increase was due to increase in number of business days and average number of subscribers.

4) VAS & others

- The YoY and QoQ increase was due to increase in the number of VAS subscribers.

5) Wireless Internet sales

- The YoY and QoQ increase was due to the continued adoption of high-end handsets and increased usage of new services and unlimited SMS tariff plan together with increase in data free tariff plan subscribers.

6) Interconnection revenue

- The YoY and QoQ increase was due to the increased call traffic.

- 04 2Q interconnection revenue was relatively low because the full impact of interconnection rate adjustment amount for the 1st half of 2004 was reflected in the 2nd quarter of 2004 when the new interconnection rate was agreed on July 2004.

3) Advertising cost

- The QoQ increase was due to increase in advertising for promotion of new services.

4) Network interconnection cost
