RISK FACTORS

We urge you to read the section entitled "Risk Factors" in the accompanying prospectus supplement. Investing in the notes involves significant risks not associated with conventional fixed-rate or floating-rate debt securities. You should understand the risks of investing in the notes and should reach an investment decision only after careful consideration, with your advisers, of the suitability of the notes in light of your particular financial circumstances and the information set forth in this pricing supplement and the accompanying prospectus supplement and prospectus.

Credit risk of SunTrust Banks, Inc.

The notes are senior, unsecured debt obligations of the issuer, SunTrust Banks, Inc., and are not, either directly or indirectly, an obligation of any third party. The notes are not deposits or other obligations of SunTrust Bank or any other bank and are not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other governmental agency. Any payment to be made on the notes depends on the ability of SunTrust Banks, Inc. to satisfy its obligations as they come due. As a result, the actual and perceived creditworthiness of SunTrust Banks, Inc. (including any downgrade in our credit rating) may affect the market value of the notes and, in the event that SunTrust Banks, Inc. defaults on its obligations, you may not receive the amounts owed to you under the terms of the notes.

The per annum interest rate applicable at a particular time will affect SunTrust's decision to call the notes.

It is more likely that SunTrust will call the notes prior to the Maturity Date during periods when the remaining interest is to accrue on the notes at a rate that is greater than that which SunTrust would pay on a conventional fixed-rate non-callable note of comparable maturity. If SunTrust calls the notes prior to their Maturity Date, you may not be able to invest in other notes that yield as much interest as the notes. You should consider, among other things, the overall potential annual interest rate to maturity of the Note as compared to other investment alternatives.

Step-Up notes present different investment considerations than fixed rate notes.

The Interest Rate payable on the notes during their term will increase from the initial Interest Rate, subject to SunTrust's right to call the notes. If SunTrust does not call the notes, the Interest Rate will step up as described herein. Unless general interest rates rise significantly, you should not expect to earn the higher stated interest rates which are applicable in the years after the first potential redemption date because the notes are likely to be called prior to stated maturity. If you intend to purchase the notes, you must be willing to have your notes called early. When determining whether to invest in the notes, you should focus on, among other things, the overall annual percentage rate of interest to the first redemption date as compared to other equivalent investment alternatives instead of focusing on the higher stated interest rates which are applicable only after the first redemption date.

An investment in the notes may be more risky than an investment in debt securities with shorter terms.

By purchasing notes with a longer term, you will bear greater exposure to fluctuations in interest rates than if you purchased a senior debt security with a shorter term. In particular, you may be negatively affected if interest rates begin to rise because the likelihood that we will call your notes will decrease and the interest rate applicable to your notes during a particular Interest Period may be less than the amount of interest you could earn on other investments available at such time. In addition, if you tried to sell your notes at such time, the value of your notes in any secondary market transaction, to the extent that there is a secondary market for such notes, would also be adversely affected.

Certain built-in costs are likely to adversely affect the value of the notes prior to maturity.

While the payment at maturity is based on the full principal amount of your notes, the original issue price of the notes includes the agent's commission, the potential cost of SunTrust hedging its obligations under the notes and certain structuring and development costs. As a result, the price, if any, at which STRH will be willing to purchase notes from you in secondary market transactions, if at all, will likely be lower than the original issue price, and any sale prior to the maturity date could result in a substantial loss to you. The notes are not designed to be short-term trading instruments. Accordingly, you should be able and willing to hold your notes to maturity.

The notes will not be listed on any securities exchange or quotation system. The notes are intended to be held to maturity and secondary trading of the notes may not be available.

Edgar Filing: SUNTRUST BANKS INC - Form 424B2

The notes will not be listed on any securities exchange or quotation system, and there may be little or no secondary market for the notes. The notes are intended to be held to maturity and are not intended to be short-term trading instruments. STRH may make a market in the notes, but is under no obligation to do so. Even if there is a secondary market, it may not provide enough liquidity to allow you to sell the notes easily, and the price at which you will be able to sell your notes is likely to depend on the price, if any, that STRH is willing to pay for the notes. You may only be able to sell your notes at a dollar price less than the amount that you paid for your notes. If STRH does make a market in the notes, STRH may then cease acting as a market maker at any time and, if it does, it is likely that you will be unable to sell your notes.

Potential conflicts.

SunTrust and its affiliates play a variety of roles in connection with the issuance of the notes, including acting as calculation agent and in connection with hedging our obligations under the notes. In performing these duties, the economic interests of the calculation agent and other affiliates of ours are potentially adverse to your interests as an investor in the notes. We will not have any obligation to consider your interests as a holder of the notes in taking any action that might affect the value of your notes.

Many economic and market factors will impact the value of the notes.

The value of the notes is subject to volatility due to a variety of factors, including but not limited to:

- interest and yield rates in the market generally;
- general economic conditions;
- policies of the Federal Reserve Board regarding interest rates;
- sentiment regarding underlying strength in the U.S. and global economies;
- expectations regarding the level of price inflation;
- sentiment regarding credit quality in the U.S. and global credit markets;
- central bank policy regarding interest rates;
- inflation and expectations concerning inflation;
- performance of capital markets;
- geopolitical conditions and economic, financial, political, regulatory or judicial events that affect markets generally;
- the time to maturity of the notes;
- a variety of economic, financial, political, regulatory or judicial events; and
- our creditworthiness, including actual or anticipated downgrades in our credit ratings.

SUPPLEMENTAL PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION (CONFLICTS OF INTEREST)

We have appointed SunTrust Robinson Humphrey, Inc. (STRH), an affiliate of SunTrust, as the agent for the sale of the notes. STRH will purchase the notes from SunTrust for distribution to selected registered broker-dealers or will offer the notes directly to investors. STRH proposes to offer the notes at the offering price set forth on the cover page of this pricing supplement and will receive underwriting discounts and commissions of up to 1.25%, or $12.50, per $1,000 principal amount of notes. STRH may allow, and these selected dealers may re-allow, up to the full amount of the selling concession per $1,000 principal amount of notes on sales of such notes by other brokers or dealers and may pay referral fees to other broker-dealers of up to 1.25%, or $12.50, per $1,000 principal amount of notes.

In accordance with Rule 5121 of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), STRH may not make sales in this offering to any discretionary account without the prior written approval of the customer.

U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX SUMMARY

The following discussion supplements (and, to the extent inconsistent therewith, supersedes) the discussion set forth under United States Federal Taxation in the accompanying Prospectus Supplement dated March 3, 2016.

The notes will be subject to U.S. Treasury regulations that apply to fixed rate debt instruments. Accordingly, subject to the discussion below (regarding the possible application of special rules governing short-term debt instruments), interest on the notes will be taxable to a U.S. Holder as ordinary income at the time such interest is paid or accrued in accordance with the U.S. Holder's regular method of accounting for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In addition, upon the sale, retirement or other taxable disposition of a note, a U.S. Holder generally will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realized upon the sale, retirement or other taxable disposition (other than amounts representing accrued and unpaid interest, which will be taxable as such) and the holder's adjusted tax basis of the note (which generally will equal the holder's cost for the note). Such gain or loss generally will be capital gain or loss and will be long-term capital gain or loss if at the time of sale, retirement or other taxable disposition the note has been held for more than one year. Under current U.S. federal income tax law, certain non-corporate U.S. Holders, including individuals, are eligible for preferential rates of U.S. federal income taxation in respect of long-term capital gains. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations.

Edgar Filing: SUNTRUST BANKS INC - Form 424B2

Subject to the discussion below (regarding the possible application of special rules governing short-term debt instruments), the notes should not be treated as issued with original issue discount (OID), despite the fact that the interest rate on the notes is scheduled to step-up over the term of the notes, because Treasury regulations generally deem an issuer to exercise a call option in a manner that minimizes the yield on a debt instrument for purposes of determining whether a debt instrument is issued with OID. The yield on the notes would be minimized if the notes were called immediately before the increase in the interest rate on the 1st Call Date and therefore the notes should be treated for OID purposes as having a fixed rate and as maturing prior to the step-up in the interest rate of the notes. This assumption is made solely for purposes of determining whether the notes are issued with OID for U.S. federal income tax purposes and is not an indication of an intention to call or not to call the notes at any time. If the notes are not called prior to the initial step-up in the interest rate, then, solely for OID purposes, the notes will be deemed to be retired and reissued at their adjusted issue price on the 1st Call Date. This deemed reissuance should not give rise to taxable gain or loss. The same analysis would apply to each subsequent increase in the interest rate on the notes and therefore the notes should never be treated as issued with OID for U.S. federal income tax purposes (except to the extent provided in the following paragraphs).

P-5

If the notes are not called prior to the first Call Date that (i) coincides with a step-up in interest rate and (ii) is within 1 year of the final maturity of the notes, then, because the period between such Call Date and the Stated Maturity Date of the notes is one year or less, the notes, upon their deemed reissuance on such Call Date may be treated as short-term debt instruments for OID purposes (but not for purposes of determining the holding period of the notes). The remainder of this disclosure assumes the notes will be so characterized and treated. This deemed reissuance should not give rise to taxable gain or loss to U.S. holders.

In general, an individual or other cash basis U.S. Holder is not required to accrue OID (which term for the purpose of this paragraph includes the interest payments on the notes) for United States federal income tax purposes during the period the notes would be treated as short-term debt instruments unless the holder elects to do so (although the holder may be required to include any stated interest in income as it is received). An accrual basis U.S. Holder, or a cash basis U.S. Holder who so elects, will be required to accrue OID during the period the notes are treated as short-term debt instruments on either a straight-line basis or under the constant-yield method, based on daily compounding. If a holder is not required and does not elect to include OID in income currently, any gain realized on the sale, exchange, redemption, maturity or other disposition of the notes after the first Call Date described above that is within 1 year of final maturity will be ordinary income to the extent of the accrued OID, which will be determined on a straight-line basis unless a holder makes an election to accrue the OID under the constant-yield method, through the date of the disposition. However, if a holder is not required and does not elect to accrue OID, it will be required to defer deductions for interest on borrowings allocable to the notes in an amount not exceeding the deferred income until the deferred income is recognized. A holder should consult its own tax advisor as to the application of the short-term debt rules to the notes.
