Subject: SiriusXM to Acquire Pandora

Attach: Employee FAQs

Team,

We have big news this morning. We just announced (https://www.streetaccount.com/pressrelease.aspx?ticker=P&intraday_id=2430189) that we've entered into an agreement to be acquired by SiriusXM, in an all-stock transaction valued at approximately $3.5 billion.

I recognize this is a lot to process as you wake up. So let me jump right to a few key points about this news and why I'm personally excited for the opportunity it presents for Pandora.

First, I'm sure many of you will have questions about what this means for you and your teams. Until the deal closes likely in Q1 of 2019 it's business as usual here at Pandora. We'll continue to operate as two independent companies until the close of the transaction. After the closing, our company will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of SiriusXM. And the powerful Pandora brand you've all worked so hard to build will remain intact. There will be no immediate changes to our product offerings, beyond what we already have planned. So just as we do every day, we need to stay focused on our priorities and on serving our listeners and partners.

All of you should be very proud of what this acquisition represents for us as a team and as a company: a chance to accelerate our efforts and enhance the resources we have to grow our business and extend our leadership in digital audio. Your hard work and dedication created this opportunity. We've made strong progress this year on our priorities to grow our audience and improve our ad capabilities, marketing and partnerships. SiriusXM clearly recognizes the value of the amazing platform and momentum we've built. And so in this context, it's actually no surprise that they want to combine forces to further amplify the success you've created and find new ways to succeed jointly.

Together with SiriusXM we'll create the world's largest audio entertainment company. SiriusXM's products and Pandora's products are very complementary with very little overlap. They are best in class in the curated subscription audio business and we are best in class in the personalized audio streaming business and the digital ad business. Given our strategic priorities and our recent conversations about expanding non-music content, increasing in-car engagement and enhancing brand awareness, the benefits of the combined company are easy to see. In short, we'll have even more support to innovate, collaborate and grow together.

Finally, we know the SiriusXM team well and I believe we'll be able to work very well alongside them. SiriusXM made a significant investment in Pandora 15 months ago. For the past year, Jim Meyer, Greg Maffei and David Frear have sat on our board and have been very supportive of our strategy. Importantly, the combined company will need both the SiriusXM and Pandora teams to continue running their businesses after we complete the transaction.

We're going to set up an integration team, and we'll keep you informed. We'll also hold a company meeting today at 9am PT / 12pm ET to discuss and take your questions. I've also attached an FAQ to address some questions that may be on the top of your mind, including the specifics of the transaction.

Our recently revised Purpose called on us to change the way people listen. I believe as the world's largest audio entertainment company, we'll have great opportunity to do just that.

Roger
