Brasil Telecom Clarifies Bovespa's Inquiry

In response to the request from the letter dated August 2nd, 2005, transcribed below:

We request clarifications about an article published on Valor Econômico newspaper, dated August 2nd, 2005, under the title "Judge suspends wireline subscription fee", as well as other information considered important, reportedly about the impacts on this company.

Brasil Telecom S.A. ("Company") informs that the legal decision, mentioned in the referred newspaper, is not known by the Company. Thus, even if such decision exists, it produces no effect whatsoever until it is formally and officially reported to the Company, by the pronouncing judge or by the National Telecommunications Agency - ANATEL, what has not happened until this moment.

The Company clarifies that it is still charging the monthly subscription fee, based on the General Telecommunications Law, on ANATEL's rules and on its concession contract, being the monthly subscription fee charged due to the availability of the wireline network, which allows the subscribers to make calls and/or receive collect calls, full time.
