On April 15, 2011, a localized fall of ground occurred at the Company's Lucky Friday Mine in Mullan, Idaho. The fall of ground occurred at 6150 feet below surface in an area known as the west 15 stope. Two of the Company's employees were working in the area where the fall of ground occurred. One of the employees escaped without injury. The Company has not been able to establish contact with the other employee. All mining operations at the Lucky Friday have stopped, and rescue operations for the missing miner are underway. The Mine Safety Health Administration ("MSHA") has had representatives on-site at the Lucky Friday since April 16. MSHA's orders also permits the rescue work to continue under the Company's rescue plan submitted to MSHA.
