STATEMENT OF AMERICAN AIRLINES
IN RESPONSE TO WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRESIDENTIAL EMERGENCY BOARD APPOINTMENT

FORT WORTH, Texas - The White House confirmed today that President Bush will appoint a Presidential Emergency Board (PEB) to intervene in our negotiations with the Association of Professional Flight Attendants (APFA) if a negotiated settlement has not been reached by 12:01 a.m. EDT on July 1.

The Administration's action today should strongly reassure the traveling public that there is no possibility that a strike could disrupt our operations during the busy summer travel season, allowing our customers to book American with confidence.

While the Administration is taking decisive action to avoid a strike, our efforts will continue to be focused on reaching a negotiated agreement with the APFA. Our talks resume in Washington on June 28, and we still believe that a negotiated agreement will provide the best outcome for our flight attendants and the company.

We are committed to providing our flight attendants with an industry-leading contract, and several options to achieve that goal remain on the table today. We want to conclude an agreement now, and hope the APFA will join us in bringing our flight attendants the best contract in the industry.
