Item 2.02. Results of Operation and Financial Condition.

On March 30, 2006, Wintrust Financial Corporation (the Company) issued a press release announcing that it will restate its unaudited interim financial statements as of and for each of the quarters ended March 31, June 30 and September 30, 2005 included in the Company's Forms 10-Q for such quarters and revise its unaudited financial information for the quarter and year ended December 31, 2005, which was previously reported in the Company's January 19, 2006 press release and February 2006 letter to shareholders. The restatements and revisions relate to the Company's accounting under Statement of Financial Accounting Standards 133, Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities, as amended (SFAS No. 133), for interest rate swap agreements entered into in connection with certain debentures related to our trust preferred securities and subordinated debt (Debt Transactions) as more fully described in Item 4.02 below.

A copy of the Company's press release is attached to this report as Exhibit 99.1 and is incorporated herein by reference.

Item 4.02. Non-Reliance on Previously Issued Financial Statements or a Related Audit Report or Completed Interim Review.

On March 30, 2006, management and the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors of the Company (the Audit Committee) concluded that the Company's unaudited interim financial statements as of and for each of the quarters ended March 31, June 30 and September 30, 2005 included in the Company's Forms 10-Q for such quarters and the Company's unaudited financial information for the quarter and year ended December 31, 2005, which was previously reported in the Company's January 19, 2006 press release and February 2006 letter to shareholders, should no longer be relied upon as a result of the accounting treatment applied by the Company in connection with certain derivative transactions associated with its Debt Transactions under SFAS No. 133.

The Company intends to file its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2005 (the 2005 Form 10-K) by March 31, 2006. The 2005 Form 10-K will include the restated information for each of the quarters ended March 31, June 30 and September 30, 2005 and revised information for the year and quarter ended December 31, 2005 to reflect the proper application of SFAS No. 133.

Background

Recently there has been considerable discussion within the accounting profession regarding the proper way to account for certain derivative instruments under SFAS No. 133, including interest rate swaps commonly used by financial institutions to hedge their interest rate exposure with respect to Debt Transactions. The Company recently became aware that, in light of recent informal technical interpretations, its interpretation with respect to applying the method of hedge accounting under paragraph 65 of SFAS No. 133 (commonly referred to as the short-cut method) that the Company had used for certain interest rate swaps on its Debt Transactions may not be correct. At the time the Company entered into the interest rate swaps, it conducted a detailed analysis of the appropriate accounting method and determined that based upon interpretations of SFAS No. 133 and common practice, the short-cut method was an appropriate accounting method because the terms of the interest rate swaps and the corresponding debt matched and, as a result, the Company assumed no ineffectiveness in the hedging relationships.

However, after further examination in light of the recent informal technical interpretations and discussions with its independent registered public accounting firm, the Company and its Audit Committee concluded that the swap transactions did not qualify for the short-cut method because of the amortizing nature of the subordinated debt and an interest deferral feature of the trust preferred securities that permits interest payments to be deferred for a period of up to five years without creating an event of default or acceleration. Therefore, any fluctuations in the market value of the interest rate swaps should have been recorded through the income statement. There is no effect on cash flows from these revisions.

At the time the Company entered into the interest rate swaps, it was widely interpreted by industry participants, including the Company, independent registered public accounting firms and other industry members, that the short-cut method of hedge accounting was appropriate for these types of hedge transactions. The Company continues to believe that the swaps have been and will continue to be highly effective hedges and that the swaps would have qualified for long-haul hedge accounting. However, as SFAS No. 133 does not allow for application of the long-haul method retrospectively, the swaps must be marked to market. The Company is currently considering whether to re-designate the interest rate swaps associated with these transactions as hedges under the long-haul accounting method in order to qualify them going forward for hedge accounting under SFAS No. 133.

The Company's press release (attached hereto as Exhibit 99.1) includes revised unaudited financial information as of and for each of the quarters ended March 31, June 30 and September 30, 2005 and for the quarter and year ended December 31, 2005.

Item 8.01. Other Events.

The Company plans to mail a letter to its shareholders (the Letter) in the near future, which will discuss the matters described in this report. The foregoing description is a brief summary of the Letter and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Letter attached hereto as Exhibit 99.2 and incorporated by reference herein.
