BUSINESS REPORT

Documents attached to the Notice of Convocation of the 1st Ordinary General Meeting of Shareholders

(For the year from April 1, 2005, to March 31, 2006)

Note: The term "FY2005" hereinafter refers to the fiscal year ended March 31, 2006, and other fiscal years are referred to in a corresponding manner. All non-consolidated figures regarding results of operations in this report were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in Japan ("Japanese GAAP"), unless otherwise stated herein. Consolidated results contained herein were prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States ("U.S. GAAP"), unless otherwise noted.

I. Business Overview

1. Developments and Results of Operations

(1) General Business Conditions within the Corporate Group

During the fiscal year ended March 31, 2006, the Japanese economy generally remained on its recovery track. Corporate earnings were sustained at a high level, causing capital investment to continue to rise, while the firm undertone of consumer spending grew further in strength.

Competition in the Japanese cellular phone market is expected to become increasingly fierce in the future, with the introduction of mobile number portability* and market entry by new entrants scheduled for this fiscal year ending March 31, 2007 in addition to the increase of cellular phone penetration rates and diversifying user needs.

Under these market conditions, the NTT DoCoMo Group adhered firmly to its "customer-centric" perspective with the objective of enhancing its medium-term competitiveness, revising its charges strategically and formulating easy-to-understand billing plans, as well as improving its lineup of handsets and services. We also endeavored to further enhance the competitiveness of our core mobile phone services by comprehensive measures that included upgrading network quality both outdoors and within buildings, wherever our customers use our services, and making ongoing improvements to after-sales service. In addition, with the aim of evolving the mobile phone into an essential tool in people's daily lives and business activities, we fostered collaboration between the NTT DoCoMo Group services and various commercial business activities, and by such means as investments in and tie-ups with related companies, we made vigorous efforts to expand our sphere of activity and secure new sources of revenue. Favorable progress was also made with the globalization of i-mode services, with the result that, as of March 31, 2006, they were being provided in a total of 15 countries and regions worldwide, including Japan, and the total number of mobile phone subscribers of the NTT DoCoMo Group and its alliance partners exceeded 250 million.

Table of Contents

We reviewed business activities that did not meet our profitability criteria, making the decision to terminate the Quickcast and PHS services. In addition, steps were taken to increase operating efficiency, including the introduction of FOMA handsets that enabled procurement costs to be reduced, and the introduction of more economical base station equipment, so as to ensure more efficient investment in base stations.

In the sphere of corporate governance, a corporate officer system was introduced in June 2005. This strengthened business-execution capabilities and enhanced the management-supervision functions of the Board of Directors.

As a result of these activities, we found and won new subscribers to mobile phone services and reduced the churn rate still further. The net increase in the number of subscribers for mobile phone services totaled 2.32 million (a 48.4% share of the aggregate net increase), the highest in the industry. Nevertheless, strategic adjustments to charges caused average revenue per contract to decline, and unit sales of handsets also fell. As a result of these and other factors, consolidated operating revenues recorded a year-on-year decline to ¥4,765.9 billion. On the other hand, operating income rose from the previous fiscal year, to ¥832.6 billion, owing to factors such as the fall in sales-related expenses.

Our sale of Group holdings of shares of Hutchison 3G UK Holdings Limited, a U.K. company, and of KPN Mobile N.V., a Netherlands company, gave rise, respectively, to ¥62.0 billion of gain on sale of affiliate shares, and ¥40.0 billion of gain on sale of other investments. As a result, consolidated income before income taxes totaled ¥952.3 billion, and consolidated net income totaled ¥610.5 billion.

* A system in which users of mobile phones can transfer their subscriptions to other providers without the need to change their telephone numbers.

Note: Consolidated financial information has been prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP throughout this report.

(2) Segment Information

n Mobile Phone Businesses

At March 31, 2006, the number of subscribers for the group's mobile phone services totaled 51.14 million, of which 23.46 million were accounted for by FOMA service subscribers, boosted by a steady shift of subscribers from mova services. The business situation in this segment is set out below.

ØStrategic adjustments to charges

In November 2005, we introduced a new plan unifying the charge structures for the FOMA and mova services, giving customers simple and easy-to-understand billing plans. This has made it easy for customers to select the optimum plan, and the charges appear more reasonable to them. At the same time, we introduced the New Ichinen Discount, a scheme in which the rate of discount on basic usage charges is increased in proportion to the number of years that subscription contracts have been held. In addition, for all new billing plans for FOMA services, we made it possible for subscribers to use pake-hodai, a flat-rate packet communication service for i-mode subscribers, giving customers greater peace of mind in using i-mode services. Also, for young people up to junior-high-school age and people aged 60 or more, we inaugurated the Fami-wari Wide, offering them low monthly basic usage charges, and enabling us to develop new customer segments.

ØImprovement of handset lineup and services

We continued to take active steps to satisfy our customers' diverse needs by enhancing our handset lineup and services.

In the FOMA handset range, we launched the FOMA 901iS and FOMA 902i series, two high-end series incorporating state-of-the-art capabilities, and launched the standard-model FOMA 700iS, FOMA 701i and FOMA 702i series incorporating principal functions as standard features. Furthermore, we launched the concept-oriented FOMA SA800i, a kid's mobile phone oriented towards protecting children, which has a favorable reception, and other conceptual models including the DOLCE, the FOMA Raku Raku PHONE II, the prosolid II, the Raku Raku PHONE Simple and the FOMA P901iTV.

In the mova handset range, we sought to create an extensive lineup in parallel with the FOMA range, including through the launch of the RADIDEN and the mova N506iSII.

With regard to new services, we sought to expand the range of customers using i-mode services by launching the i-channel service, which enables users to receive up-to-date news, weather and other information automatically, without the need for special manipulation of their handsets. We also widened the range of use of Osaifu-Keitai * wallet phones by inaugurating the new ToruCa wallet phone function to enable users to capture store coupons, store-guide and similar information in handsets. We launched the PushTalk service that allows multiple users to speak simultaneously, offering users a new mode of communication unprecedented in the field of cellular phones. Other new launches included those of My DoCoMo and the imadoco search location service.

* Osaifu-Keitai refers to mobile phones equipped with a contactless IC chip, as well as the useful function and services enabled by the IC chip. With this function, a mobile phone can be utilized as an electronic wallet, a credit card, an electronic ticket, a membership card, an airline ticket, and more.

ØEnhancement of after-sales service and network quality

In the sphere of after-sales service, we took steps to further enhance the Premier Club Reliable Support service for DoCoMo Premier Club members. These included a service to provide free-of-charge battery pack replacements that was launched during the fiscal year ended March 31, 2005 and had a very favorable reception, and a service providing three years of free handset repairs for malfunctions covered by the warranty. We also started support for handset repairs for malfunctions not covered by the warranty, and support for customers experiencing a problem with a handset (e.g. water damage, theft, loss) within one year of purchase and wishing to replace it with one of the same model and color.

With regard to the network, steps were taken to strengthen competitiveness. These took the form of the expansion of the FOMA service area and enhancement of service quality to match customers' diverse needs, and engineering work on network equipment to meet growth in communications demand.

ØFurther development of the Osaifu-Keitai wallet phone

In December 2005, we launched our new iD credit brand, a new settlement platform that uses the Osaifu-Keitai wallet phone as its settlement medium. For services provided by credit card companies that adopt the system, credit settlement can be effected immediately without the need for a signature, simply by holding the phone up to a scanner (reader) installed in a member retailer's outlet. In collaboration with our partner, Sumitomo Mitsui Card Company, Limited, we have been making vigorous efforts to recruit member retailers and spread the use of compatible services. In addition, tie-ups have been concluded with companies such as FamilyMart Co., Ltd., am/pm Japan Co., Ltd., AEON Co., Ltd., and LAWSON, INC., and decisions have been taken to introduce settlement services compatible with iD into the outlets of these partner companies. With regard to the DCMX credit service through which the NTT DoCoMo Group issues its own credit cards, preparations were made for their scheduled inauguration in April 2006.

In January 2006, East Japan Railway Company launched its Mobile Suica^{*} service, a members-only service that utilizes DoCoMo wallet phones. The service enables members to enter and exit from railroad stations simply by holding up their wallet phones to the ticket gates, further broadening the range of uses of the Osaifu-Keitai phone.

As of the end of the year under review, the number of the DoCoMo Group's Osaifu-Keitai service subscribers totaled 11.8 million.

* Mobile Suica is a registered trademark of East Japan Railway Company.

ØDevelopment of international services

In order to make it even more convenient to use our international roaming services, by the end of March 2006, we expanded the service area of international roaming-out services for voice calls and Short Message Service (SMS) to 132 countries and areas; for packet communications to 69 countries and areas; and for videophone calls to 23 countries and areas. New handsets introduced during this fiscal year included the FOMA M1000 and FOMA NM850iG, which can be used both within Japan and overseas. As a measure to promote usage by customers, we applied unused portions of communications allowances for basic usage charges and the Packet Pack discount service to international services such as WORLD WING and WORLD CALL, and we also lowered WORLD CALL charges. In addition, we began providing our international multimedia messaging service (MMS), which enables our subscribers to send and receive e-mail with images, and we established our first overseas service counter, the DoCoMo WORLD Counter in Hawaii, with the aim of further expanding services and enhancing convenience.

ØCorporate marketing

In December 2005, we launched the DoCoMo Business Premier Club as a membership service for corporate customers, with the aim of enhancing their convenience and boosting customer satisfaction. This provides preferential services to members, including a service to award points for payments for the purchase of group products and for repairs, and a service to provide free rental of replacement handsets in the event of problems with FOMA handsets. Additionally, for the machine-to-machine communication market, we launched the FOMA Ubiquitous Module, a compact, lightweight dedicated FOMA packet communications terminal for incorporation into a variety of electrical equipment.

(3) Group Capital Expenditures

Capital expenditures in FY2005 totaled ¥887.1 billion. This spending was devoted primarily to active capital investment for the expansion of the FOMA service area, including the development of the FOMA Plus-Area*, so as to meet the increase in demand for communications services, and also to enhance the reliability of communications networks. Another key area of investment was in telecommunications equipment and in equipment for testing and research required for new services such as i-channel and PushTalk. Steps were also taken to improve the efficiency of capital investment and reduce the associated costs, including by reducing procurement prices, introducing economical base-station equipment, and devising stratagems for design and engineering works.

* This refers to service areas that have been expanded to include areas in which it was not previously possible to use FOMA, including mountain areas. FOMA Plus-Area compatible models can be used in the FOMA Plus-Area in addition to the existing FOMA service area.

(5) Group Research and Development Activities

Research and development expenditures during the year totaled ¥110.5 billion. The principal research and development activities were as described below.

Research and development activities carried out by the group during FY2005 centered on expanding and reinforcing FOMA services, enhancing the functional capabilities of i-mode services, and increasing the IP orientation of networks. The group also carried out basic research into technologies for the future evolution of mobile communications.

Products and services brought into practical use during the year included PushTalk, mobile phones able to receive One-Segment terrestrial digital television broadcasts for mobile phones and other mobile terminals, and mobile phones that incorporate numerous security features.

In addition, the Company took steps to enhance the quality of existing services and the functional capabilities of its networks. These included the development of a service that enables mail with attached images to be exchanged internationally, a positioning service using the GPS technology, a dedicated 2 GHz band antenna distribution system to upgrade area quality, for example within buildings and underground, and common base equipment for IP service management in preparation for the development of new IP-based services in the future.

With regard to technologies to be brought into practical use soon, progress was made with the development of mobile phones with the IrSimple high-speed infrared communications protocol and of micro fuel cells designed to increase battery capacity. Also, to meet the increase in demand for FOMA services, progress was made with the development of 1.7 GHz band FOMA service base-station equipment and mobile phones, and also with the development of mobile phone platforms that unify basic software sets, with the objective of stimulating the global spread of W-CDMA and cutting the cost of compatible handsets. Steps were also taken to develop HSDPA², designed to achieve high-speed and efficient packet transmission, and to pursue development aimed at the full IP-orientation of networks so as to make them both flexible and economical.

With respect to future technologies, research was conducted on wireless access methods to enable high-speed packet transmission, including a successful field experiment in which the Company achieved 2.5Gbps packet transmission in the downlink. Additionally, preparations were made for IEEE 802.16e (WiMAX)³ standard proving field trials, and further progress was made in research into strengthening the security of future mobile devices, and also in research on networks, terminals, and media relating to the creation of new means of communication suitable for a ubiquitous communications society.

(6) Group CSR Activities

Due to the wide adoption and advancement of mobile communications services, cellular phones have become indispensable tools for people's daily activities. The rapid growth in its uptake, on the other hand, has also caused some negative social problems, such as unwanted bulk emails and crimes committed involving the use of cellular handsets. Meanwhile, people's concerns about earthquakes and other natural disasters as well as global environment have heightened in recent years.

Under these circumstances, we have worked to improve the reliability of our communications facilities and network and reinforced countermeasures against disasters, strongly aware of our mission to fulfill our corporate social responsibility (CSR). As a part of our measures to tackle social problems resulting from the use of cellular phones, we have continuously worked to prevent unsolicited bulk emails, and responded to the issues addressed in the surveys and research programs conducted by the Mobile Society Research Institute. In addition, we have actively promoted various environmental conservation and social contribution activities on a continual basis, including the collection and recycling of used mobile phone handsets and accessories, saving on paper resources by offering an e-billing service which provides customers' bills through our website or by e-mail message, the DoCoMo Woods forestation campaign, and encouraging our employees to take part in various community works as volunteers.

At the NTT DoCoMo group, we believe that it is our social mission to help shape a safer and more peaceful world. To realize this goal, we set forth DoCoMo Anshin Mission during the fiscal year ended March 31, 2006, under which the whole corporate group implemented various measures and promoted technical innovations in a comprehensive and unified approach.

DoCoMo Anshin Mission

- Protection of privacy
- Care and protection of children
- Support at times of malfunction or loss
- Seeking universal design
- Preparation for disasters
- Anti-crime measures
- Further effort to improve mobile phone etiquette
- Wireless software renewal
- Consideration for the environment

Table of Contents

As part of the DoCoMo Anshin Mission, the following are among the new measures that have been initiated.

- The Company has taken steps to prevent phishing, and anti-spam measure have been enhanced by enabling users to add functions for setting acceptance and refusal levels for i-mode mail.

- NTT DoCoMo Keitai safety schools have been held to teach children about correct and safe mobile phone use and proper etiquette. So far, some six hundred of these courses have been held in elementary schools, junior and senior high schools, and local communities throughout Japan.

- To give children's guardians greater peace of mind when giving mobile phones to children, the Company has launched the FOMA SA800i Kids PHONE, which incorporates numerous safety features. It also inaugurated the imadoco search service for enabling the approximate location of the handset carrier to be identified, and the Kids iMenu to ensure the listing only of content suitable for children.

- In the Hearty Discount billing plan for physically challenged persons DoCoMo has waived administration fees for changes of model or contract in addition to other waived fees.

- As part of the Company's environmentally friendly approach, it launched FOMA N701iECO handsets, which use bio-plastic of plant origin for its body material.

- To increase the ease of use of the i-mode Disaster Message Board Service, the packet transmission charges for the registration and confirmation of information notifying family and friends of personal safety and whereabouts have been reduced to zero. An additional function enables users, when registering such information, to have its content notified to e-mail addresses designated in advance by i-mode mail, and it has also been made possible to confirm messages concerning people's safety and whereabouts from overseas by i-mode service.

2. Issues Facing the Group

In Japan's mobile communications market, competition among carriers is projected to grow increasingly fierce. Among the factors fuelling this are the scheduled introduction of mobile number portability in the autumn of 2006, and the impending arrival of new market entrants.

Amid this environment, the NTT DoCoMo Group will carry out its business operations based on three cornerstones: Further strengthening of core businesses, Creation of new sources of revenue, and Cost reduction.

Table of Contents

Ø Further strengthening of core businesses

The group's main priority is to ensure that its services give its customers satisfaction and the desire to go on using them, and for that purpose it will make every effort to provide ever-more-attractive products and services to cater to every conceivable need. In addition, by building high-quality and reliable networks and ensuring the constant improvement of after-sales-service, the group will continue to strengthen its comprehensive competitiveness, to gain new subscribers and further reduce the churn rate, and to promote the use of its services.

Ø Creation of new sources of revenue

The NTT DoCoMo Group is addressing the maturation of the mobile phone market by taking steps to create new sources of revenue, and to that end it will maintain its efforts to expand its spheres of business around its three growth vectors of multimedia, ubiquity, and globalization. Specifically, we are scheduling the start of our HSDPA service in the summer of this year, and we are confident that the provision of new services that take advantage of high-speed packet transmission will lead to a further increase in the use of mobile phones. With respect to international services, through the ongoing expansion of roaming services in conjunction with overseas providers, we intend to improve customer convenience and to expand our revenues.

To establish new spheres of business that are not dependent on traffic revenues we will vigorously in collaboration with other enterprises deploy a variety of services that use Osaifu-Keitai wallet phone functions, for example the NTT DoCoMo Group's DCMX credit service via iD. In addition to creating new sources of revenue in this way, we aim to augment the scale of our business in other ways, including by strategic investments and tie-ups both within Japan and overseas.

Ø Cost reduction

To ensure the efficient management of our core businesses and the expansion of new business, we will enhance the efficiency of our operations. Steps to achieve that will include the reduction of handset procurement costs and network costs by revising its business processes, and the efficient management of commissions to agent resellers.

Through steps outlined above, we will continue to enhance our corporate value by evolving our cellular services from the perspective of innovation and users' safety, with the aim of transforming cellular phone into convenient tools for users' daily life and business. At the same time, the NTT DoCoMo group will strive to gain the trust and confidence of all its stakeholders by addressing compliance-related matters and CRS activities.

Table of Contents

Upon the enforcement of the Law for the Protection of Personal Information in Japan in April 2005, the NTT DoCoMo Group appointed a Chief Privacy Officer (CPO) and strengthened its structure for the protection of personal information, at the same time taking steps to build and enhance the group-wide structure for the management of information security. However, it is highly regrettable that there were incidents in which external recording media containing customer information were lost and there was some leakage of information through file-exchange software at group companies. We deeply regret any anxiety that those incidents caused our shareholders. We have subsequently taken measures to further strengthen the handling and management of terminals dealing with personal information and external recording media, to educate staff, and to strengthen the guidance and supervision of subcontractors. We are also taking measures to double-check technical security in the systems of our group. We will continue to make every effort to ensure that there is no recurrence. And once again, we would like to beg for the understanding and support of all our shareholders.

3. Valuation of marketable securities

The Company accounts for its marketable securities in accordance with U.S. Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 115, Accounting for Certain Investments in Debt and Equity Securities.

The unrealized holding gains and losses, net of applicable deferred tax assets/liabilities, are not reflected in earnings, but directly reported as a separate component of shareholders' equity. The cost of securities sold is determined by the moving-average method with the exception of debt securities sold, which is determined by the first-in, first-out method.

4. Depreciation and amortization of non-current assets

The cost of securities sold is determined by the moving-average method with the exception of debt securities sold, which is determined by the first-in, first-out method. Available-for-sale securities whose fair value is not readily determinable are stated primarily at moving-average cost.

The Company recorded an impairment loss on the following asset group for the year ended March 31, 2006.

| (2) Purpose of use: | PHS related assets |
| (3) Types of assets: | Machinery and equipment, antenna facilities and intangible assets such as telecommunication software |

The Company groups Mobile phone business and PHS business as major minimal units which are individual sources of cash flows.

As the Company determined to terminate PHS services during the three months ending December 31, 2007 and estimated that future cash flows from the PHS business would be negative, the Company wrote-down the entire carrying value of its long-lived assets related to the PHS business, resulting in an impairment loss of ¥19,749 million for the year ended March 31, 2006.

The impairment loss consisted of machinery and equipment of ¥12,647 million, antenna facilities of ¥2,320 million, intangible assets such as telecommunication software of ¥3,601 million and other assets of ¥1,180 million.

Because the amount of the impairment loss equaled to the amount of income from the reversal of Provision for loss on PHS business on long-lived assets, the amounts were netted and the Company did not present an impairment loss on the non-consolidated statement of income for the year ended March 31, 2006.

As a result, the impairment had no impact on income before income taxes for the year ended March 31, 2006 on the non-consolidated statement of income.
