Global e-mail from Fred Tomczyk to TD AMERITRADE associates

Associates:

I am pleased to announce that we have entered into an agreement to acquire thinkorswim Group Inc. in a cash and equity deal worth about $606 million.

As you know, we have two priorities at TD AMERITRADE to gather assets and to maintain our #1 position in online equity trades per day. This acquisition will extend our leadership position in trades per day, further distancing us from our nearest competitor. For those of you not familiar with thinkorswim, it is the fastest growing online brokerage firm with unique capabilities in the fastest growing segment of our market. They place more retail options trades per day than anyone in the industry. By combining our complementary businesses, we will lead the industry in daily average revenue and retail options trades per day.

Even more important than additional scale, the acquisition of thinkorswim will significantly advance our trading strategy by several years, adding functionality for advanced options trading, futures, foreign exchange and portfolio margining.

Upon close of the transaction, we believe that we can leverage thinkorswim's best-in-class Investools trader education program with our active traders and as an acquisition channel to bring in new clients. Over time, we will expand Investools to include programs for long-term investing, helping us with our asset gathering efforts.

The thinkorswim team is very talented and their innovative approach has led to outstanding achievements in both trader technology and education. I am pleased to announce that Tom Sosnoff and Scott Sheridan, founders of thinkorswim, will join TD AMERITRADE to lead this continued innovation. thinkorswim CEO Lee Barba has also agreed to join TD AMERITRADE to help with integration of the education business.

As I've said before, we have a strong, stable balance sheet, are well-capitalized and have a strong cash flow all of which uniquely position us to be opportunistic in this economic environment. We will need regulatory approval, along with approval from thinkorswim shareholders. We expect the deal to close within the next six months.

This transaction clearly positions us for greater success and enhanced growth opportunities. Together we will create a clear leader in the industry with a best-in-class platform for traders, investors and registered investment advisors.

ASSOCIATE FAQ

Note: The following questions and answers are for internal use only.

Why did TD AMERITRADE decide to buy thinkorswim?

This acquisition ties directly to our growth strategy, creating meaningful scale in our trading business and adding advanced trading technology. thinkorswim is the industry leader in retail options trades per day, and it has state-of-the-art trading technology. By combining our complementary platforms, we will be the leader in both retail options and equity trades per day. In addition to the trading business, thinkorswim has advanced education tools that we can leverage to bring in new clients and expand to include programs for long-term investors. This will help drive our asset gathering strategy. We believe this acquisition is in the long-term best interest of clients, associates and shareholders.

How will the company be organized?

Tom Sosnoff and Scott Sheridan, founders of thinkorswim, will join TD AMERITRADE and lead the active trader side of the business. Tom will report directly to Fred. thinkorswim CEO Lee Barba has also agreed to join TD AMERITRADE to help us through integration of the education business.

Will thinkorswim brokerage clients be converted to the TD AMERITRADE system?

While details have not been finalized, after the transaction closes, we plan to transition options trades to route from our proprietary clearing platform, and we will integrate existing TD AMERITRADE trader tools, starting with our desktop applications, into thinkorswim's application architecture. thinkorswim's futures and foreign exchange trades will continue to execute through Penson.

What are the plans for thinkorswim's education business?

We are highly committed to education and the addition of thinkorswim will fill a strategic gap for us. We plan to combine the Investools platform with our own education program, focusing on coaching and the products/tools available to help traders pursue their chosen strategies. We will add content over time, including programs focused on long-term investing topics, to help even more of our clients to trade and invest with confidence.

What ticker symbol will the combined company trade under?

The company will continue to trade under the symbol AMTD.

What will happen to the thinkorswim brand?

Post-integration, we anticipate the company will operate under the TD AMERITRADE brand.

What are the next steps?

We will establish an integration team made up of senior management at both companies. This team will begin planning a high-level integration strategy. However, these efforts will be limited until the deal closes. TD AMERITRADE and thinkorswim are both publicly traded companies and will remain competitors until close. Again, we expect the deal to close within six months. In the meantime, we will keep you informed of any new developments.
